

THE NEW TERM OF COURT.

It Opens With a Breeze and Boms Interesting Decisions. IMPROVEMENTS NEAR THE PARK. Judge Clarkson Grants a Temporary Injunction Restraining the Collection of Taxes for Them— The New Jury.

Opening Day. Sheriff Hoyd uttering a very feeble "Hear ye, hear ye" at the opening of the February term of the district court yesterday morning.

He had been practicing in a vacant room during vacation, and the pitch of his voice which he had decided to use did not meet the requirements of a crowded room. A call of the roll of the 350 attorneys at the bar would have shown but few absentees. They spent the hour before the arrival of the judges in greetings not unlike those indulged in by college students after a summer vacation, receiving the congratulations never met except in the court house.

City Attorney Poppleton occupied a front seat and good-naturedly submitted to the badinage of Judge Savage and Judge Baldwin, who warmly congratulated him upon his possession of a means, recently acquired, of making a will.

Judge Baldwin had his feet wrapped around several chairs in the jury box and put commenced reading a few chapters of the history of the district court. The judge in charge when the four judges entered and court was formally opened.

Instead of calling the list of trial cases as in the main court, each judge will have the cases which will come before him for the term, designated at the beginning of the term.

The list of trial cases for each day will be posted on a blackboard in the clerk's office. Each judge will have a pasteboard slip in his room giving the number of the case on trial and indicating whether another case will probably be reached on that day.

Attorneys will not be allowed to file pleadings of time except for cause shown in writing. Judge Clarkson will hear ex parte motions on Monday and Wednesday during the month of February and other times on regular motion days.

Mr. Offutt injected a criticism from Judge Waley by calling attention to the fact that a temporary injunction had been issued by one judge in favor of the South Omaha stock yards company against the South Omaha national bank and by another judge in favor of the bank against the stock yards company.

"Why did you bring it to me then after Judge Clarkson had issued an injunction against the other party," asked Judge Waley.

"I am not, Mr. Offutt, I got my order from you."

used as a public street or highway; that said city of Omaha shall lay out and improve said street or highway and shall forever discontinue and shall forever repair at the expense of said city of Omaha."

If the injunction is made permanent and the decision stands the test of the supreme court, it will bring the city in for the payment of a large sum of money for the improvements that have already been made. The city has already paid about $10,000 for the paving of the streets around the park and a much larger sum has been expended on the streets for paving and curbing as shown by the following figures:

This makes a total of $22,968 which has been assessed against property owners for each year ending and will have to be paid by the city if the decision is sustained.

Bureau Habes Corpus. W. F. Kelly of Lincoln came up yesterday to get Grandpa Burrus to get his signature to a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

A Few More Saloon Men Made Happy Yesterday. The license board resumed work yesterday afternoon, starting out with granting licenses to Albert Rothery, 711 North Sixteenth street, and P. F. Anderson, 1230 Dougo street.

In the line of hearing protests the board took up the case of G. H. Hallenheimer, northwest corner of Sixteenth and Manderson streets. Protests against this place charged that it was a very tough place, a resort for hoodlums, and was objected to by all the property owners up there.

For some queer reason the faces of the members of the board broke into very big smiles as Henry questioned them into a broad-gauge chair and exclaimed, "Well!"

Henry returned Mr. Gilbert, his smile growing broader and broader as he asked you want? "What do I want?" queried Henry; "I thought you wanted something."
